

We Value Your Privacy

We and our technology partners ask for your consent to the use of cookies to store and access personal data on your device; for example: unique identifiers and your browsing patterns. This may be used for advert and content personalisation, measurement, audience insights and product development. Some of our partners process personal data on the basis of legitimate interest.

Consent is optional, however may restrict content and advert personalisation. Choices made here apply only to this site. You can change your consent, view settings and our list of 183 partners and the purposes for which consent is required at any time by using the link at the bottom of the page.

View our Privacy Policy for more information.

Click 'Accept' below if you are happy with this.

You can change or withdraw your consent, or read further information by clicking ' Settings'.

 Settings

Accept

dinner party.

Liverpool and Manchester United supporters might be surprised at the inclusion of a player who won the Champions League with the Red Devils and has scored 103 Premier League goals for Liverpool's bitter north-west rivals. His interaction over hors d'oeuvres with Inter Miami captain and multiple Ballon d'Or winner Lionel Messi would undoubtedly keep Alexander-Arnold's other dinner guests entertained.